Cloisonné Urns

The ancient art of Cloisonné originated over 700 years ago in the Imperial workshops of China. This intricate technique involves applying fine metal filaments over copper or brass to create ornate patterns, meticulously hand-filling them with enamel, followed by firing and polishing to achieve a radiant finish.

Our collection exemplifies exquisite craftsmanship, offering a refined tribute that blends artistry and durability, making these urns a testament to heritage and reverence.

Conscious Clay Element Urns

WA artist Hayley Bangham offers a stunning range of handmade urns featuring an integrated tealight candle holder in the lid. The urns are hand-thrown and bisque-fired, then finished with a glass-like glaze available in five Ayurvedic element-inspired colour base options.

Each urn is hand-thrown and glazed, resulting in uniquely individual finished pieces. These images serve only as a guide for the colour range, and variations in finish should be expected. The shape may vary slightly due to the hand-thrown nature.

Also available is a Neriage urn, which is a Japanese practice of layering clay to create beautifully rustic pieces. These are finished with an Australian timber lid.

Conscious Clay Ash Glaze

Conscious Clay transforms ashes into hand-thrown ceramic vessels, creating one-of-a-kind memorial pieces.

Ashes are combined with one of five Ayurvedic inspired glazes Air, Earth, Ether, Fire or Water. The final firing reacts with the remains, creating unique variations in flashes, flecks, and tone, from lighter to darker hues. The Tear Drop vessel is also available in the Neriage technique, blending ashes with layers of Australian clay.
